The Decline of Original Politics

Over the past several decades, we have witnessed a decline in original politics. The rise of partisan gridlock, the erosion of civil discourse, and the growing influence of special interests have all contributed to this decline. As a result, our political system has become increasingly dysfunctional and unable to address the challenges facing our nation.

This decline in original politics has had a profound impact on our society. We have become a nation divided, with two opposing factions locked in a perpetual state of conflict. We have lost sight of our common goals and values, and we are no longer able to work together for the common good.

The Return to Original Politics

The return to original politics is essential for healing our divisions and restoring our national identity. Original politics is based on the principles of natural law, which are universal moral truths that are binding on all human beings. These principles include the right to life, liberty, and property, as well as the duty to obey just laws and to respect the rights of others.

When we return to original politics, we will be able to rebuild our nation on a solid foundation of truth and justice. We will be able to overcome our divisions and work together for the common good. We will be able to restore our national identity and make America a beacon of hope and freedom for the world.

The Principles of Original Politics

The principles of original politics are derived from natural law and the teachings of the Founding Fathers. These principles include:

* The right to life: Every human being has an inherent right to life, from conception to natural death. * The right to liberty: Every human being has the right to liberty, including the freedom of speech, religion, and assembly. * The right to property: Every human being has the right to property, including the right to own and use land, resources, and other goods. * The duty to obey just laws: Every human being has a duty to obey just laws, which are laws that are consistent with natural law. * The duty to respect the rights of others: Every human being has a duty to respect the rights of others, including the right to life, liberty, and property.

These principles are the foundation of our nation. They are the principles that our Founding Fathers fought and died for, and they are the principles that have made America a beacon of hope and freedom for the world.

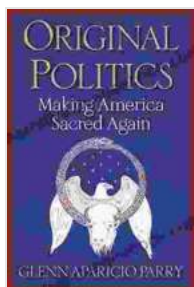

The Benefits of Original Politics

The benefits of original politics are numerous. When we return to original politics, we will:

* Heal our divisions: Original politics will help us to overcome our divisions and work together for the common good. * Restore our national identity: Original politics will help us to restore our national identity and make America a beacon of hope and freedom for the world. * Create a more just and equitable society: Original politics will help us to create a more just and equitable society, where everyone has the opportunity to succeed. * Protect our freedoms: Original politics will help us to protect our freedoms and ensure that our rights are not infringed upon. * Make America great again: Original politics will help us to make America great again, by restoring our founding principles and making us a beacon of hope and freedom for the world.

The return to original politics is essential for healing our divisions and restoring our national identity. Original politics is based on the principles of natural law, which are universal moral truths that are binding on all human beings. When we return to original politics, we will be able to rebuild our nation on a solid foundation of truth and justice. We will be able to overcome our divisions and work together for the common good. We will be able to restore our national identity and make America a beacon of hope and freedom for the world.
